

Minebea Products: Essential to Modern Lifestyles

A wide variety of Minebea precision components are used in many devices around the home and office, as well as in aerospace and automotive applications, contributing to more convenient and enjoyable lifestyles.

A minimum of 60 of our miniature and small-sized ball bearings are used in an average household, with some homes containing as many as 200. With the greater use of information and communications technology and electronics in household appliances, we expect this number to continue increasing.